

Overview

Ken Law has devoted nearly 30 years of his career in the law to acquiring and perfecting a level of mastery in the negotiation, litigation and resolution of clients' commercial, real property, and bankruptcy litigation matters in California State, U.S. Federal and Appellate Courts.

Among other legal topics, Mr. Law is a recognized expert in fraudulent conveyance litigation and has served as a faculty member for the State Bar of California's Continuing Education of the Bar. Mr. Law has toured the State on numerous lecture panels for CEB, which have provided education to other attorneys on the interplay between fraudulent conveyance law and asset protection vehicles. Ken has also been a featured guest lecturer for regional and national trade creditor groups, addressing audiences concerned with enforcing creditor's rights in bankruptcy. Frequent topics of interest include reclamation litigation, the discharge of environmental liabilities, and avoidance litigation in bankruptcy.
